ISRAEL-LEBANON: Israel Expands Southern Militias
//The Israelis yesterday attacked Palestinian positions in West Beirut and Syrian forces in the Bekaa Valley. Palestinian ambushes of Israeli units are continuing.	25) 25)
According to an Israeli military spokesman, Israeli aircraft yesterday struck several tank and artillery positions in West Beirut. Palestinian air defense units failed to hit any of the aircraft.	25
	25
Comment: //The strikes against Palestinian targets were partly in retaliation for continuing guerrilla actions against Israeli forces. The Israelis also are concerned about what they perceive as increased firing by Palestinian units in West Beirut. In addition, the strikes were intended to remind the Palestinians of Israeli impatience over the lack of a settlement of the PLO issue.//	25.
Situation in the South
Israeli-supported militia forces commanded by Major Haddad yesterday arrested a Lebanese parliamentary deputy in An Nabatiyah who had been visited by the US Ambassador on Wednesday. Israeli forces also arrested a Lebanese Army officer and a Lebanese Internal Security Force officer in the city. The parliamentary deputy was subsequently released.	25

SPECIAL ANALYSES
IRAN-IRAQ: Military Strengths and Weaknesses	. 2:
//Iraq has substantially more equipment than Iran in nearly every conventional category, but Baghdad's static defensive strategy has permitted Iran to seize the military initiative and use its infantry and artillery to best advantage. Iran has been aided by the incompetence of senior Iraqi officers and the low morale of many Iraqi reserve and militia units. Baghdad's forces, however, appear to be using their strengths more effectively in the battle around Al Basrah than they did earlier this year at Dezful and Khorramshahr, where they suffered humiliating defeats.//	2
<pre>//The fighting is taking place on a flat, open plain, which is ideal for use of armor and unsuited to massed infantry.</pre>	29
//The Iraqis have strongly fortified the area and brought in regular Army infantry units rather than the militia and reserve troops they relied on in previous battles.
//Iran's forces appear to have been overconfident, relying on poor Iraqi morale to cause a collapse of the Iraqi defenses at the beginning of the invasion. As a result, Iranian commanders have made crucial mistakes and Iran now finds itself locked into a set-piece battle that favors defense. Iraq's massed weapons are able to inflict significant losses on Iran's infantry and remaining armor.//	, . 2:
Ground Forces
//Iran's greatest strength is the fanaticism of its infantrymen, primarily Revolutionary Guards and militia troops, and their effective use in combined arms operations

The Guard and the militia are at least as numerous as the regular Army and are drawn principally from staunch supporters of the regime. They generally are equipped as light infantry, although some Revolutionary Guard armored units have been formed.//	25X1
//The Revolutionary Guard and militia are used to lead Iranian assaults to achieve initial breakthroughs that are then exploited by regular Army units. Motivated by Shia Islam, which exalts martyrdom, the Guard and militia are willing to suffer extremely heavy casualties in human-wave assaults on Iraqi armored positions.//	0574
//The incompetence of Iraq's senior commanders has been a major Iraqi weakness. Iraqi generals, many of whom hold their positions because of political loyalty rather than military competence, have been unable in past battles to assess correctly the terrain or anticipate the major avenues of Iranian attacks. Overall direction of the Iraqi defense by senior commanders has been weak, especially their use of reserve forces.//	25X1
//The Iranian officer corps has been heavily purged by the Khomeini regime. Many of the current officers, who have risen through the ranks during the war, appear competent.//	25X1

ISRAEL: Economic Impact of the Invasion
	25 X ′
The economic costs to Israel of its invasion of Lebanon include higher inflation and temporarily reduced output. A drop in tourism, combined with sluggish exports, will aggravate Israel's balance-of-payments deficit. These economic considerations probably will not be serious enough, however, to influence the duration of the Israeli military's stay in Lebanon.	25X1
Finance Minister Aridor estimates the direct costs of the military operation in Lebanon so far total about $1 billion. The indirect costs, primarily from lost output, are likely to exceed that figure.	25X′
Industrial production fell 5 percent in June and would have declined more if many key workers had not been released from reserve duty. between 65,000 and 75,000 reservists are still on dutyequivalent to roughly 5 percent of the labor force.	25X 25X 25X
Tourism also has been hit hard, with 22 percent fewer tourists visiting Israel in June than a year ago. The tourist trade normally accounts for roughly $850 million in foreign exchange receipts annually.	25X′
Some $1 billion is to be raised by requiring that virtually all Israeli workers receive 4 percent of their pay in long-term government bonds, a compulsory loan to the government. New taxes imposed on 15 June, including an increase from 12 percent to 15 percent in the valueadded tax, will raise another $600 million.	25 X ′
Economic growth this year probably will be less than would have been the case without the invasion. The head of the Manufacturers' Association estimates GNP growth—which before the invasion seemed likely to reach 4 percent—will be reduced by a maximum of 2 percent. Production will rebound as reservists are released from duty.	25X
